

BSD Postdoctoral Association

Welcome to The University of Chicago

As a postdoc in the Biological Sciences Division (BSD), you are automatically a member of the BSD Postdoctoral Association.

The association represents the interests of postdocs directly to faculty and administration, as well as providing social and career development resources to researchers.

We hope you find this welcome pack useful. Although the folder was designed for graduate students, the websites listed are also relevant to postdocs. In addition, we have included information specific to postdoc rights and benefits.

We recommend that you take advantage of the following resources:

- Postdoctoral Association Website <http://www.uchicago.edu/bsdpostdoc>
Your rights and benefits; seminars; academic facilities; foreign postdoc issues

- Postdoc Seminars

Weekly seminars to promote effective training and career counseling, while encouraging research and social communication among postdocs.
Biological Sciences Learning Center room 205. Fridays from 4 - 5pm.

- Postdoc Weekly Bulletin

Events, news, jobs and funding opportunities relevant to postdocs emailed to you once a week. To sign up email Melissa Lindberg (mlindber@bsd.uchicago.edu).

Contact Imogen Hurley (ihurley@uchicago.edu) if you have comments or suggestions about postdoc life at The University of Chicago. The association committee always welcomes new volunteers with ideas and energy.
