

Kick-start Your Career in Healthcare Communications

Recruiting now for Associate Medical Writers

The Gardiner-Caldwell Group (TGCG) and Scientific Connexions are proud of the exceptional scientific talent and excellent delivery of client service in healthcare communications. To achieve this we recruit only the very best, we recognize potential, and we actively encourage career progression.

We are currently recruiting for Associate Medical Writers to join our Academy Foundation Program in Healthcare Communications – this opportunity will be limited to 10 successful candidates. If you are a postgraduate (MD, Pharm D, or PhD in Science), or want to move from scientific research into the healthcare communications profession, or just starting your medical writing career, the Academy Program provides a framework for a successful transition.

After a structured 9-week program of intensive training and skills application, you will be equipped with the necessary skills to join our Medical & Scientific Services teams working closely with the pharmaceutical industry and leading healthcare professionals on global healthcare communications programs.

To be considered for this exciting opportunity, candidates should demonstrate:

- Excellent scientific credentials (preferably a PhD related to medical research)
- An ability to understand and interpret complex scientific data
- Good basic scientific writing ability and attention to detail
- Excellent interpersonal skills for effective liaison with clients and healthcare professionals
- A commitment to developing a career in healthcare communications
- Enthusiasm, drive and flexibility.

The closing date for applications is April 2, 2007.

If you feel you have what it takes, please provide your full CV and a 400 word rationale explaining why you want to become a Medical & Scientific Services specialist and what qualities make you stand out from the crowd. Further stages will include completion of a medical writing test (within 1 week of receipt), followed by interview and further skills testing.
